

WEDDING BELLS

WOODS—WESTON.

The wedding of two very popular young people of Fairfield, who had practically grown up together from childhood, was solemnised when Miss Molly Weston and Mr. John Thomas Maxwell Woods (formerly known to footballers and others as 'Max') were joined in the bonds of holy matrimony at St. John's Church, Parramatta, last Saturday afternoon. Rev. Archdeacon Begbie officiated. The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Woods, of York Street, Fairfield, and the bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Weston, of Smithfield Road, Fairfield.

The church had been beautifully decorated with white blossoms and tastefully-arranged vases of white stocks by the bride's mother, assisted by girl friends.

Many friends had joined the large number of guests in the church when the bride entered, escorted by her brother, Mr. Jack Weston.

A radiantly charming picture was the bridal group.

The bride was daintily gowned in white lace over white taffeta, falling away at the waist with full skirts, and the long train was picked out with orange blossoms. A top-knot of white orchids mounted the short full veil, and she carried a small bouquet of lily of the valley. The bride featured an exquisite cultured pearl necklace with small ear-rings to match, the gift of the bridegroom.

Charming bouquets of white broderie anglaise were worn by the bridesmaids, Misses Dorothy Weston (sister of the bride) and Grace Birks (friend of the bride), with top-knots to match, and they carried bouquets of red roses.

Messrs. David and William Woods (brothers of the bridegroom) were best man and groomsman respectively.

The bride's gift to the bridegroom was a handsome suit case, whilst his gifts to the bridesmaids were smart hand-bags.

During the singing of the register, Mr. J. Laine, of Sydney, artistically rendered 'At Dawn'.

As the bridal party left the church the bells pealed merrily.

The reception was held at The Careless, Parramatta, where 100 guests were received by the bride's mother, who chose dark navy floral silk and added a spray of lily of the valley. The bridegroom's mother was decked in navy French sheet, her nose being of violets and mimosa. An old friend of both families, Mr. Thomas Jackson, presided at the breakfast, and the toasts were sincerely given and warmly received. Dancing followed to the strains of Glen Martyn's orchestra. Delightful numbers were rendered by the mellifluous voice of Mr. Laine.

The very happy young couple left on their honeymoon to be spent touring the North Coast, the bride wearing a smartly-tailored ensemble of a light woolen material in mist blue effect.

The marvellous array of gifts received was indeed an eloquent testimony of the popularity and esteem enjoyed by the newweds. These happy home will be
